Around the Town

And then there is the story about the Hope man who placed an ad in The Star about a month ago which read: "Will the friend who borrowed my Gladstone travelling-bag kindly bring it back—as I have another friend who wants to borrow it?" It's been a month, and he still hadn't got it back—but last night we found out where it is, of all places!

His son-in-law has it. His wife gave it to the youngsters to take on their honeymoon.

The case of the missing travelling-bag embarrasses everyone, including papa, son-in-law, and The Star.

It embarrasses The Star because papa put the ad in the paper and it didn't "pull."

It embarrasses papa, because he tore off down town to put in an ad without first asking questions at home.

It embarrasses the son-in-law—because when I left him last night he was on his way home to "discover" the long-lost bag.

Prosecuting Attorney Dick Huie and a pilot friend, Mr. Franklin, were Tuesday guests in Hope, and late in the afternoon our committee, including Albert Graves, Ed McFadden and others, went out to the field to see them take off for Arkadelphia.

The plane was a small 65 horsepower Cadet. The pilot was a small man, but Dick weighs about 225, and, furthermore, when he sat down in the back seat he was carrying a package containing 25 pounds of ashtrays.

It was an even-money bet among your committee that Mr. Franklin never would get the tail-end of the ship off the ground—but they made it.

Which reminds me of the time Norris O'Neal invited Sweeney Copeland, then chief of police, to go for a ride in Norris' small Cub plane. The boys run about 250 pieces, or 450 gross. But they got off.

Some time later Sweeney was reading the specifications on a Cub plane, and when he came to the line which said "load, 375 pounds" he turned pale and said to Norris, "I thought we ran a long way down the field—how DID we get off?"

The Nation's Needs First

From this day until the emergency shall have passed, that is the pillar of cloud by day, the pillar of fire by night, which the American people must steadfastly follow. By this standard every act, every thought must be judged—"the nation's needs first."

It is 24 years since the nation was called upon to think and to act so. The tumultuous twenties followed, with every man out for himself and the devil take the hindmost—with the result that the devil came perilously near getting us all. The tremendous thirties followed that, a period of bruised and bitter effort to put Humpty Dumpty together again. Now the fighting forties have roared in upon us.

It is just possible that if there had been, in the twenties, a little more thought of "the nation's needs first," the thirties would not have been so terrible. It is just possible that, had the thirties known a little more of such a thought, we would have recovered faster.

Now the dark shadow of war, falling across the world and ever nearer to our own homeland, dictates with inexorable force the single policy of salvation, "The Nation's needs first." What we would not do because it was wise and right, we must now do because it is our only hope of preserving all that is good in our political and social order.

Does a shipbuilder or airplane mechanic pause in his work and ask, "Can't I get a little more out of this?" The American people want him to get justice, but always—the nation's needs first.

Does a manufacturer hesitate to "farm out" much of a fat government contract, is he reluctant to expand facilities or inclined to haggle over a profit? The American people want him to get justice, but always—the nation's needs first.

Does a manufacturer hesitate to "farm out" much of a fat government contract, is he reluctant to expand facilities or inclined to haggle over a profit? The American people want him to get justice, but always—the nation's needs first.

Business as usual, life as usual, these are set behind us. There is no longer any salvation, even for the most selfish, except in placing the nation's needs first in mind and action.

We used to believe that if every man looked out for his own, the common welfare would somehow take care of itself. If that ever was true, it is not true now. Today we must think of "all of us" before "myself." We all fall as individuals if our way of life falls.

Judge yourself long before others have the opportunity to judge you.

Measure every thought and act by that iron measuring-rod: "The Nation's Needs First."

Wasp Sting on Brow Fatal to Texarkanian

Mrs. Hugh May, 35, Killed By Wasp While Fishing at Red Lake

Mrs. Hugh May, about 35, of 1708 Ash street Texarkana, was stung over the brow above the left eye by a wasp while fishing on Red Lake, one mile south of Fulton about 10 o'clock Thursday morning, and died within 10 minutes.

Dr. L. M. Lile, Hope physician who was called to attend Mrs. May, said witnesses reported she was dead before the boat, from which she was fishing, could reach the bank. He said that death was due to the sting.

Mrs. May was with a party of Texarkana citizens which included Judge A. P. Steel, a Mrs. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Crockett and Ralph Bailey of Hope.

Witnesses said Mrs. May's two young sons age 14 and 16, were in the boat with her when the accident occurred. The body was taken to Texarkana.

'Dime Night' Is Saenger Record

Attendance of 1,868 Breaks All Wednesday Records

The second monthly "Dime Night" show at the Saenger, sponsored jointly by Hope Star and the theater, brought out 1,868 persons Wednesday matinee and night—breaking all Wednesday records in the 14 years that the theater has operated, Manager Remmel Young announced.

Standing room was sold out at the Wednesday night showing of "Jesse James" and "Model Wife," and many patrons were turned away, to go to the Rialto. Attendance at the second "Dime Night" exceeded the one a month ago by 500. It beat every "Bank Night" record in existence here.

"Dime Night" is a revival of old pictures, sometimes shown on a double bill with a new film, in an effort to make available the greatest productions of the film industry at minimum prices for the whole family.

Thirty-six famous old pictures were selected out of a list of 5,000 produced in the last 10 years, and two have been shown— "Angels With Dirty Faces" last month, and "Jesse James" on Wednesday. The third will be announced shortly.

This 1941 Maneuver Timetable of the Army Shows Awareness of United States 'Invasion' Areas

Map prepared by Intelligence and Analysis Branch, War Department Bureau of Public Relations.

As the weapons of modern warfare roll off American assembly lines with ever-increasing speed, Uncle Sam's rapidly-expanding army plans to increase the tempo of its practice with them. From now on through the fall the men who may fight for the U. S. will be trained in blitz tactics in the greatest series of military maneuvers held in our history. Most of these exercises will take place in coastal areas, suggesting that army tacticians and strategists are working out ideas for protection of U. S. "invasion coasts."

Diagonally shaded circles on map above show areas in which the army will hold corps and army maneuvers. Numbers on map correspond to maneuver numbers in table below, which gives date of the exercises and units participating in each.

Merchants to Meet Thursday

Discuss DeQueen Auction 7:30 Thursday, City Hall

All Hope store operators, distributors and others interested in retail merchandising are invited to attend a meeting at 7:30 o'clock this Thursday night at the city hall under the auspices of Hope Junior Chamber of Commerce when the local committee will report on its trip to the monthly Farmers Auction and Trade Day held at DeQueen last Monday.

It is hoped to launch a similar auction and trade promotion event in Hope on a regular basis for a long-term period, probably a year. The DeQueen event, held the first Monday of every month, has run every month without a break for 14 years and has been uniformly successful.

Copies of the advertising literature used at DeQueen will be shown to merchants at Thursday night's meeting, and full details of the DeQueen event, as operated by the Ad Club division of the DeQueen Commercial Club will be explained.

Business as usual, life as usual, these are set behind us. There is no longer any salvation, even for the most selfish, except in placing the nation's needs first in mind and action.

It's hands up time, if you know the answers, for here is a handy set of questions about the hands. Don't hand over any wrong ones.

1. What can an ambidextrous person do with his hands?

2. On what side of home plate does a left-handed batter stand?

3. In ballroom dancing, does the boy hold the girl's right or left hand with his right?

4. When is the term "hands" used as a unit of measure?

5. Complete this quotation and give its source: "Let not thy hand know what thy — hand doeth."

10-Billion Bill for the Army

40,000 Planes Needed to Match Increase by Nazis

WASHINGTON (P)—A $10,000,655,000 army supply bill—the largest single appropriation since World War days—carrying funds to give the U. S. Air Corps 40,000 planes, was sent to the house Thursday by the appropriation committee with notice that the funds asked were insufficient.

During secret testimony, which was made public Thursday, Robert Patterson, under-secretary of war, said that the Nazis had

SCS Leaders to Attend State Rally

Dr. H. H. Bennett, Gov. Adkins to Speak at Damascus

DAMASCUS. Van Buren County—the largest group of local, state regional and national soil conservation leaders ever appearing on the same program in Arkansas will be here Tuesday, June 10 for a state-wide rally which marks the climax of Arkansas Soil Conservation Week proclaimed by Governor Homer M. Adkins for June 9-14.

Dr. H. H. Bennett, chief of the Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service, Washington, D. C.; Governor Adkins and Federal District Judge John E. Miller, former United States senator from Arkansas, of Fort Smith, are the featured speakers who have accepted the invitations extended by the supervisors of the Central Valley Soil Conservation District who are sponsoring the all-day meeting at the Soil Conservation Service CCC camp here.

The rally program will begin at 10 a. m. with County Agent H. W. Robertson of Clinton presiding. Representatives of state and federal agencies serving farmers in soil conservation districts and representatives of far mencies will speak. Entertainment features have been arranged. Lunch will be served at noon at the camp at a nominal cost by members of local clubs.

J. L. Williams, chairman of the Central Valley District supervisors of Morrilton will preside at the afternoon program starting at 1:30 o'clock. Reece Caudle, president of the state organization of district supervisors, of Russellville, will speak briefly.

Governor Adkins, who in his proclamation of soil conservation week, declared that "soil defense is an integral part of national defense, and the soil conservation efforts of our people are making America more than ever worth defending" will speak from 1:45 to 2:15 o'clock. Federal Judge Miller, who will address the group from 2:15 to 2:30 o'clock, will introduce Dr. Bennett.

Agency representatives who have been invited to participate in the morning program include Fred A. Smith, vocational education; Aubrey D. Gates, Bureau of Agricultural Economics; H. E. Thompson, Extension Service; Hudson Wren, Farm Security Administration; J. B. Daniels, AAA; Floyd Sharp, WPA; A. L. Nelson, Ouachita National Forest; P. H. Bryan, Ozark National Forest; Fred H. Lang, State Forester; J. W. Hull, National Youth Administration; Col. G. C. Graham, Civilian Conservation Corps; Edgar A. Hodson, Soil Conservation Service; and Dr. W. R. Horlacher, Dean of the College of Agriculture.

R. E. Short, president of the Arkansas Farm Bureau, of Brinkley and Lawrence Sloan, master of the Arkansas State Grange, have been invited to appear on the same program.

Dr. Bennett will go to Damascus from Little Rock Tuesday morning and will be accompanied by Louis P. Merrill, regional conservator of the Soil Conservation Service, of Fort Worth, Texas; Edgar A. Hodson, who is state coordinator for the Service in Arkansas, and J. L. Williams and Reece Caudle.

The Soil Conservation Service chief will hear first hand reports on soil

Allen

The Allen Home Demonstration club met at the home of Mrs. O. F. Lloyd on Thursday, May 15th, at 2 o'clock with nine members and five visitors present.

The meeting was called to order by our president, Mrs. F. B. Fenwick. A duet "The Great Speckled Bird" was sung by Mrs. Howell Goad and Miss Mattie Lou Burke. The devotional was given by our hostess, Mrs. O. F. Lloyd reading Matthew 1:3-7.

The roll call was answered by the latest cotton garment we had made. Mrs. Jack Watkins was elected our new secretary as work has prevented Mrs. L. R. Urrey from attending reg-

The Allen club plans to hep organize a 4-H club after appointing Mrs. J. J. Schmitt as our 4-H club leader. The first meeting will be Friday night, May 23, at the oak grove in front of Urrey's store.

Miss Margaret McCorkle, our clothing leader gave an interesting demonstration on mattress covering. Mrs. O. F. Lloyd gave a demonstration on an all cotton rug explaining how it could be made and of what material it was made. Interesting games were played under the direction of our recreational leader, Mrs. William Schooler. Miss Margaret Schmitt won the prize.

We served a delicious plate with sandwiches, salad, cookies and cokes. Our next meeting will be at the home

Shoer Springs

The Shoer Springs Home Demonstration club met with Mrs. Sam England, May 12th with 13 members, 2 visitors and Miss Fletcher present.

The meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. Earlie McWilliams at 2:30. The song for the month was sung. Mrs. England read the devotional from the 43rd Psalm followed by prayer. The roll call was answered by a new cotton garment you had made. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Mrs. Beckworth and Mrs. Allen promised to help Mrs. McWilliams at the Experiment Station with the serving of lunch. The president requested all members to hand their reports to the various leaders at the next month's meeting.

Miss Fletcher explained the defense program—what we were to do and insisted each to join in the food and feed campaign and do our part.

She also gave us instructions on how we can make model people of ourselves. She showed us one of the new comforters and told the group how it was made. The clothing leader, Mrs. Huckabee took over the Red Cross garments discussion and it was decided to make little ships and gowns. She also explained slip covers for our springs and gave each a booklet on how to care for our new mattress of which 70 were made and five old mattresses renovated.

Mrs. Beckworth gave a very interesting talk on the Better Homes Tour. Mrs. McWilliams set Saturday afternoon to meet at the community house and clean up and plan a better homes program which was done. The program was set for the night of May 31 at the community house. Everyone is invited to come and be with us. Miss Fletcher suggested we plant soybeans for a summer legume.

During the social hour delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. The meeting adjourned to meet with Mrs. Joe England in June.

Hickory Shade

The Hickory Shade Home Demonstration club met at the home of Mrs. C. Rogers Tuesday, May 13 with Mrs. Joe Willett as the associate hostess. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. John Allen. Mrs. C. Rogers gave the devotional followed by the Lord's prayer repeated in unison. Mrs. H. Bruce read the minutes. Each member answered the roll call by showing a cotton article made.

The clothing leader, Mrs. Lee Ross, had charge of the program. Each member agreed to make a cotton garment for the Red Cross.

The recreational leader directed several interesting games. During the social hour delightful refreshments were served. The next meeting will be at the home of Uma Stephs with Mrs. Fred Wilson as co-hostess.

Columbus

The Columbus Home Demonstration club met at the home of Mrs. S. E. Salisbury. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Fred Wilson.

The meeting was called to order by the president. The club decided to make small boys' shirts to be given to the Red Cross.

Instead of having the tour in May, we decided on a cotton show, with each one bringing an article they had made out of cotton goods. The clothing leader, Mrs. Lee Hipp had charge of the program. She gave demonstration on how to take care of our new mattresses. She also had demonstration on thrift materials.

Plans were made for the council meeting which will meet here June 18. We are planning on a large crowd and a big program. The clothing leader asked that everyone have their cotton garments ready for the council meeting. We were all very glad to have Miss Fletcher with us this month. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. David Mitchell.

Melrose

The May meeting of the Melrose Home Demonstration club was held at the home of Mrs. P. J. Holt with Mrs. J. L. Lester as the associate hostess. The devotional was on the forgiving of our neighbors and was led by Mrs. Holt.

Under business there were further plans made for Red Cross sewing. Plans were made to attend the council meeting at Columbus. Jars were distributed to the crippled children and two members were selected to assist at the Experiment Station Friday.

The program was under the leadership of Mrs. W. M. Bryant, clothing leader.

The home, as a whole, including landscaping, furniture, floors and proper lighting also was discussed.

A demonstration on making cookies with a cookie press and on baking them in the electric roaster was given by Mrs. Lester.

During the social hour the cookies were eaten with cold served by the hostess.

DeAnn

The ladies of the DeAnn community, met Thursday afternoon at the Samuel's store to make a Better Homes tour of their community.

The J. M. Arnold home was the first to be visited and the installation of Butane gas was shown. Their daughter, Valla Dean, showed her bedroom which she had beautifully done over, by papering, painting and remaking of old furniture.

Going by the rose garden, which is between the Arnold homes, we visited the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Arnold. On leaving the Arnolds we were served dainty refreshments.

The home of Mrs. Monroe Samuel was the next visited which had been remodeled the past two years, leaving a large sleeping porch, a new bathroom and a spacious living room.

The flower garden of John Timberlake and the beautiful rose garden of Mrs. George Samuel was looked at on the way to Mrs. Jessie Burkes, where a well sodded lawn, lots of new shrubs and a electric washing machine was shown.

Visitors from Hope were Mrs. S. A. Westbrook, Mrs. A. A. Holbert and Mrs. J. C. Andrews.

DeAnn

The DeAnn Home Demonstration club met at the home of Mrs. Claude C. Steen on Thursday, April 24. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Roy Burke.

The devotional and prayer was given by Mrs. Willis Poole, followed by song "The Star Spangled Banner."

The roll was called with each one answering to a new dish they had prepared. The minutes were read and adopted by Mrs. Belva June Burke, acting secretary. There were 20 members and one visitor present.

Mr. Allen demonstrated new attachments for sewing machines.

Miss Frances Hartsfield, Mrs. Roy Burke, Mrs. Arlene Burke and Mrs. C. R. Samuel were appointed as a committee to select a pattern for the Red Cross dress. Every one is urged to make them as soon as possible. Chair bottoming demonstration was discussed.

Mrs. Willis Poole, fair chairman, encouraged everyone to do better canning to enter in the county fair.

An I. Q. contest was given by the recreational leader. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and her daughter, Dorothy.

The meeting adjourned to meet again with Mrs. Albert Tubbs on May 22.

Bethel

The Bethel Home Demonstration club met April 28, 1941 at the home of Mrs. Arthur Wilson. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. C. E. Case, "Home Sweet Home" was sung and led by the song leader, Mrs. Hugh Nolen.

The 24th chapter of St. Matthew was then read by the hostess. The old and new business was tended to. There were 12 old members and three visitors present. Mrs. T. W. Ashworth was elected as the new president of the club due to the resignation of Mrs. Casey.

Refreshments were then served by

The hostess served delicious refreshments. The meeting next month will be at the home of Mrs. H. E. Sutton.

Old Liberty

A meeting of the Old Liberty Home Demonstration club was called by the president, Mrs. J. E. Mosler, at the home of Mrs. S. B. Bristow on Friday, May 23.

The meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Mrs. Chester Rosenthal. The purpose of the meeting was to fill out reports on clean-up week and to discuss plans for the council meeting to be held at Columbus on June 18. Nine members and two visitors were present.

The Shaver Springs club met at the home of their president, Mrs. Eustice McWilliams on May 23 for a call meeting. All were surprised with tea, which was very refreshing to all. The meeting began with the group singing "America the Beautiful" and "America." The hostess read the 23rd and 24th Psalm and commented on the war countries and Christianity. Then a short prayer by one home present. Each one present filled out their clean-up reports for Better Homes Week. All seemed to enjoy the program very much.

Spring Hill

The Spring Hill Home Demonstration club met Friday, May 23 at the home of Mrs. S. E. Salisbury. The hostess gave the devotional reading Psalms 27, after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated. The roll was called and responded to by giving some dish each had fixed. 22 members were present with one new member enrolled with three visitors.

Mrs. John Hartfield Jr., led the program. Better meals for farm families was the subject for discussion. Old and new business was attended to.

school house Wednesday morning to work out the slurry. We will meet at the home of Mrs. Lucy Muckabee for our next meeting.

Liberty Hill
The Liberty Hill Home Demonstration club had a call meeting Friday afternoon, May 26. Several members were present.

The president presided over the meeting. A pattern was selected for a four year-old girl's dress. It should be made and handed in to the leader. Announcements were made for the different county meetings next month. Everyone was dismissed after the devotional was given.

Mrs. Roy Stephenson's Breakfast Bridge Is Thursday Event

Honoring Mrs. William McGill, who is leaving soon for Garland City to make her new home, Mrs. Roy Stephenson entertained the members of their Contract club and a few additional guests at a perfectly appointed breakfast bridge on Thursday morning.

Following a delectable breakfast, bridge was played from 2 tables with Mrs. Finley Ward receiving the high score gift. The honoree and Miss Elizabeth Green, bride-elect, were also presented with lovely gifts.

Artistic arrangements of unusual varieties of gladioli, roses, and gardenias formed a beautiful setting for the following guests, Mrs. McGill, Mrs. R. L. Brough, Mrs. Finley Ward, Miss Elizabeth Green, Miss Ruth Taylor, Mrs. Kelley Bryant, and Mrs. Syd McMath.

Circle No. 2 of the W. S. C. S. Meets on Monday

Mrs. E. P. O'Neal and Mrs. N. P. O'Neal were hostesses to the members of Circle No. 2 of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist church at the home of the former on Monday afternoon.

An interesting program on "Stewardship of Christian Citizenship by Control of Liquor Traffic" was led by Mrs. Henry Pitt with Mrs. S. H. Warmack, Mrs. E. P. Stewart, Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. E. E. White, and Mrs. Steve Carrigan discussing the different phases of the subject.

The leader of the circle reported that the circle's quota for Red Cross sewing had been announced. Making 2 dresses and 1 skirt will be the duty of the circle.

A delicious ice course was served to 15 members during the social hour.

STEPHENDAY: DEBORAH AND ANGELA SPEND A HAZY AFTERNOON STANDING, DANCING, BUT THERE IS NO MENTION OF LOVE, OR KISSES. ANGELA CONTINUES HER Warnings. THIS IS THE ONLY WAY DEBORAH CAN GET HOME FROM THE MOVIES, TELL DEBORAH OF A RECENT BUND MEETING WHICH ENDED IN A RIOT, AND WHO DO YOU SUPPOSE WAS THERE?

GOODBY TO DREAMS
CHAPTER IV
IT was nobody in the world,"
Angela announced triumphantly, "but your beautiful, golden-haired Stephan."

The cold cream jar slipped from Deborah's fingers and shattered against the leg of a chair.

In a moment, however, she was able to say with an almost convincing laugh, "Not really? I'll never doubt again that you have second-sight, Angie. . . . Well, did he get arrested?"

"I don't know. The news flash didn't last that long."

Angie spoke with heart-felt regret.

Then as she looked from the gobs of cold cream that splattered the floor to Deborah, her face suddenly puckered like that of a child who knows that he has been naughty, and her voice went flat. "I just thought you ought to know," she blurted. "I mean, oh, Deb, I'm so sorry!"

BUT after the lights were out, Deborah did not sleep. Instead, she lay rigid, following with wide eyes the rippling pattern cast upon the ceiling by the headlights of passing cars.

"Angie," she said suddenly into the darkness, "I've been trying to remember—what was that jingle the Portuguese fishermen on the Cape used to sing about the fog?"

When Angela only murmured in drowsy protest, she insisted, "But of course you remember. . . . Something about the fog—always claiming its own, wasn't it?"

"Oh—that?" Angie yawned. "Just some superstitious nonsense. . . . Let's see—translated very freely, it goes something like this:

"'I'll fated is that which comes out of the fog, for—just a moment—for always in the end, it must return whence it came. And never—there's some more, but I can't recall it at the moment."

"I wonder what it means—if anything."

"If anything" is right. For Heaven's sake, go to sleep!"

But then, all of a sudden, Angie was wide awake, too.

"What made you ask that, Debby?" she demanded.

"Oh—why, just something I'd been reading, I suppose," Deborah improvised lamely.

NEXT day was the last meeting of the Shakespeare seminar. . . . And next day, Stephan did not come to class at all. He had not made any engagement with her for that evening. All the next day, while Deborah was packing to go home, she listened for the telephone, thinking that he would call at least to say, "Goodby!" But he did not.

Not that it mattered, she kept telling herself. Except that all along, knowing Stephan had been like reading a fascinating tale, which led you on and on without which you followed eagerly from chapter to chapter because of its implied promise of exciting revelations to come. . . . Well, now the story had simply stopped—without even a "To Be Continued."

That Stephan was German, she had always taken for granted, although he had never said so in so many words. But that he could possibly be all those other things that Angie believed of him had been—just funny—until that evening when Angie had come home from the theater with her monstrous story. . . . From any one but Angie, the story would have been incredible; but whatever might be Angie's faults—curiosity, impertinence, even sometimes malicious mischief—she would not lie.

THE next morning Deborah and Angela started back to Cape Cod in the little car they had driven to California.

The old Lovett house sat just across the street from the water front. The opposite lot, running down to the shore, had been kept as an open parkway, so that the early, seafaring Lovetts might always have an unimpeded view of the ocean they loved. . . . The house had been built in the golden days when Yankee clippers sailed the Seven Seas, and fleets of fishing smacks still kept the shipyards and wharves of the old town busy.

The structure was of white frame with green shutters. Originally a modest two-story building, after repeated additions by generations of Lovetts, it now rambled through unpredictable passageways and ells, up and down steps from one level to another.

'Deep Hole Charlie' Died Too Soon

FAIRBANKS, Alaska — (AP) — Deep Hole Charlie Johnson just missed probable riches. He died recently at 75, just before his gold-bearing property in the Jack Wade country was to be dredged.

As a young prospector in the Klondike, Charlie spent his first winter sinking to bedrock. Alone, he went down 204 feet—lowering the bucket, filling it, and then climbing a side-wall ladder to the surface to windlass up the bucket and dump it. He found bedrock—but it was bare.

Women will spend all summer tanning their hides—and all next winter hiding their tans.

They Practiced Art of War, Then They Studied It

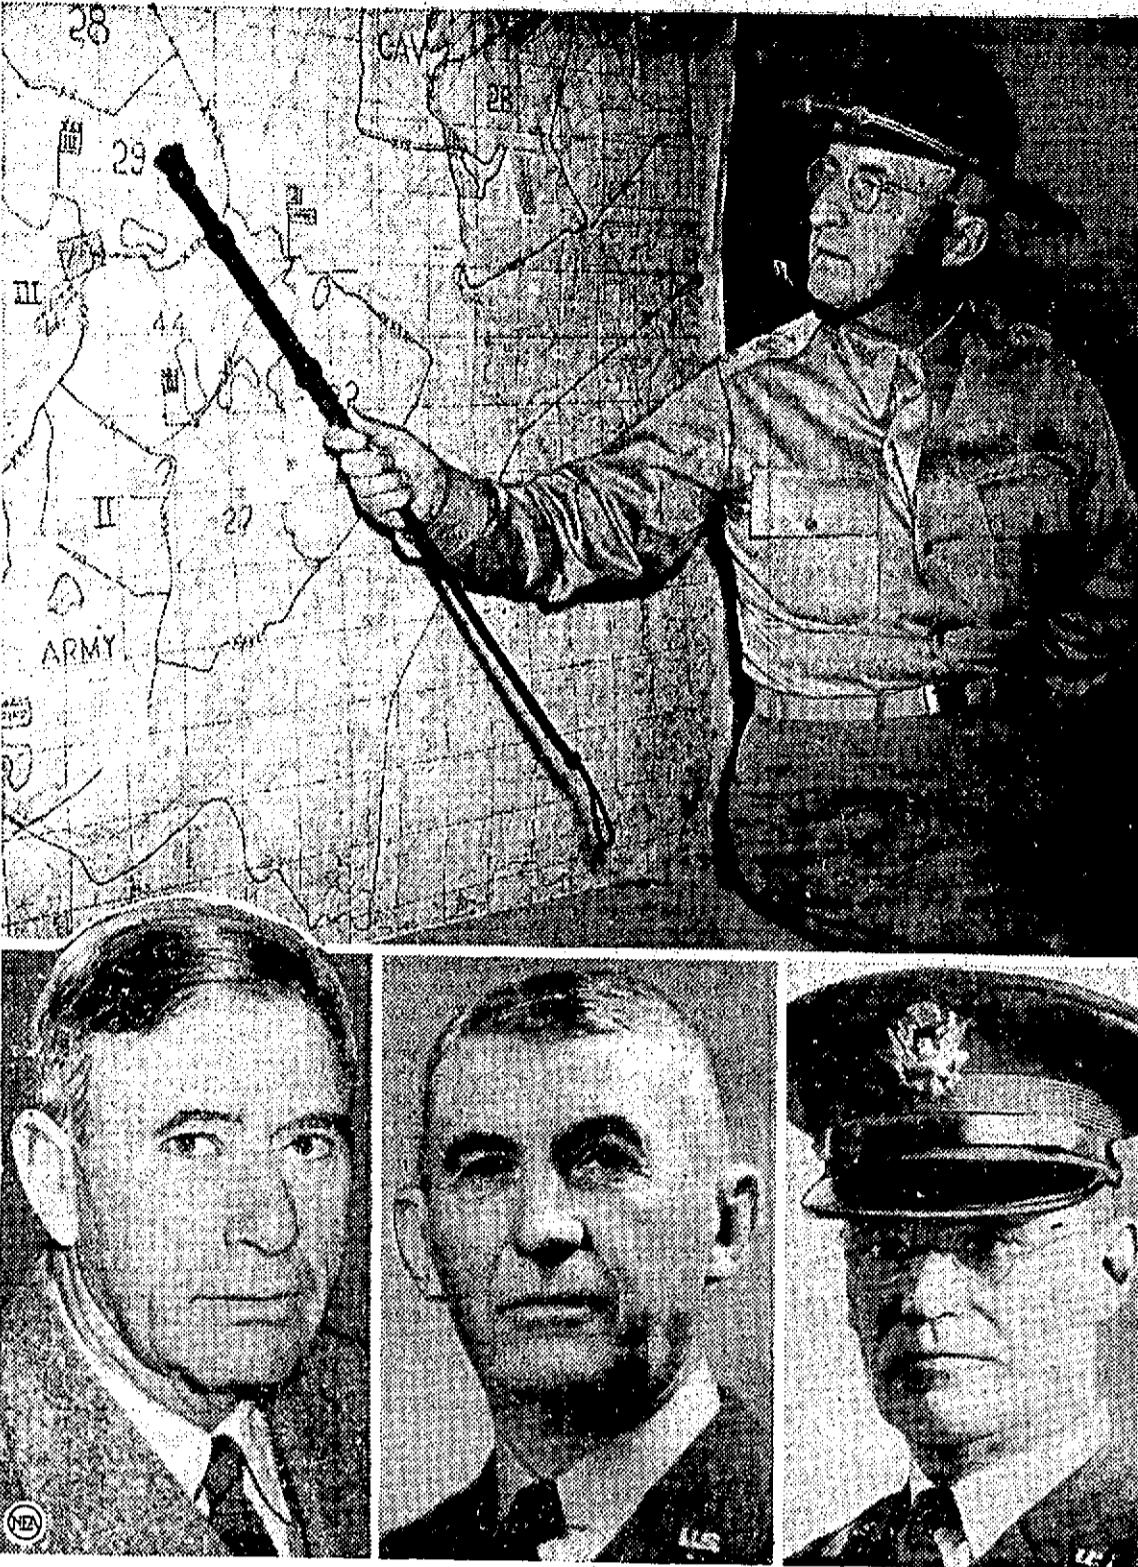

The leaders of our Army and Navy—men who generally are little more than "names" to the public—stand forth as real personalities in this article below.

By GERRY DICK
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Each of the commanding generals of the four armies which make up the U. S. Army eat his military milk-teeth on battlefields, not textbooks. They did not study the art of war until they had fought one. Like their Chief, Gen. Marshall, none of them went to West Point. Each was baptized into the Army in battle during the Spanish-American War.

General Marshall was a dark horse when he was chosen Chief of Staff. The man who had been considered most likely to succeed the retiring Chief, Malin Craig, was Lt. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, Commander of the First Army.

"Hughie" Drum is a soldier first and last. He was commissioned when he was 18—two years under age—by an act of congress in tribute to the gallantry of his father, Captain John Drum, who was killed at San Juan Hill. Before young Hugh undertook the study of textbook tactics he had had years of rough and tumble fighting in skirmishes with guerrillas during the Philippine insurrection. A short, stocky man with weathered skin, graying hair and pugnacious jaw in which a cigar is usually clamped, Drum looks like a tough customer. He likes to win—in his profession or his hobbies (bridge, golf, chess)—and he knows how to outwit an adversary as well as outfight him. His friends say that his light-hearted golf game has put many co-escorts partners off their guard. About the time they relax and figure the game's a sure thing, Drum sets his jaw, plays like mad and collects at the 19th hole.

Remarkable Instinct for Organization

Drum went to Europe with Pershing in the First World War and was sent ahead to France to select ports and training fields for the 1st Division. When the war was over, he was Chief of Staff of the 1st Army, had distinguished himself by laying out the plans for the battle of Argonne forest.

His instinct for military organization is remarkable. On one occasion when a textbook on command was needed in a hurry, Drum dictated to relays of stenographers and completed in one month what usually takes three years or more.

An incident during the World War illustrates Drum's sure knowledge of military operations. The late Secretary of War Newton Baker (who told the story) was in Drum's improvised office in the St. Michael sector when the phone rang. The person at the other end told Drum to call off artillery fire. Drum repeated the message to Baker, picked up another phone and told his artillery to double fire. Baker waited for an explanation. Finally Drum said: "That message was a fake. I'm sure of it." He was right.

After the World War, Drum was commander of the Army Schools at Leavenworth, Inspector General of the Army, Commander of the Hawaiian Division. Two years ago he was given command of the First Army.

No one speaks to the General until he has had breakfast. He gets up at 6:30 every morning, takes pad and pencil with him to the table. There he maps out his days as he would an engagement with enemy tanks. This in part explains why officers and men alike so respect Gen. Drum's military wisdom. One junior officer confided: "Drum knows what you are going to say before you finish the first sentence. Before you finish the last, he has the answer to your problem."

He's Hard-Riding, Straight-Shooting

For years after he joined the army Lt. Gen. Ben Lear, Jr., who commands the Second Army, would look nervously up and down the line whenever he barked an order. He had volunteered for the Spanish-American War when he was a boy and was made a sergeant. He was ordered to the Philippines, and as he lined up his men to board the transport in San Francisco, he got a nasty shock when he realized one of the rugged recruits he was sending up the gangplank was his own father. Lear senior felt lonely back in Colorado after his son left, so he followed along and asked to be sent to the same regiment.

After the capture of Manila both Lears were mustered out, and the son got back in the next day with a commission as second lieutenant of cavalry.

Those were the days the old Army talks about with almost teary affection.

The test of an officer's calibre was how fast and far he could ride and how straight he could shoot. Ben Lear was so good at both that he represented his regiment in rifle matches throughout the United States, and the U. S. Cavalry at the Olympic Games in Stockholm.

Riding and shooting satisfied the General's love of sport until he heard about golf. He bought a set of clubs, and with the patience that is natural to him and which was developed in his handling of animals, he practiced hour upon hour in his backyard before he ventured onto a golf course. When he did, it wasn't long before he became the best No. 1 tee man in the Army.

Most of his early army life was spent in places like Cuba and with the border patrol in Texas. Later he was Commander of the Cavalry School at Riley, Kan., Commander of the Pacific Sector and the Panama Canal, at Balboa, and in 1940 was promoted to command the Second Army.

Over six feet tall, at 62 Gen. Lear has the muscular, well-knit figure of a man who spends most of his waking hours in the saddle. His dark brown hair is turning gray, but his small watery eyes are as quick as ever, and nothing escapes them even if he is traveling at a gallop. He is phlegmatic, and his low voice can quiet the most fractious horse or soldier.

His favorite mount was a big horse named Cosmopolitan which could jump six feet if it had to. When the General had to have Cosmopolitan destroyed, he kept the horse's hide, and no matter how cunningly Mrs. Lear hides it, the General always finds it and brings it out again for the wall of his room.

Best Educated Man in the Army

The newest Lieutenant General, Walter Krueger, recently selected to succeed Lt. Gen. Herbert Brees as Commander of the Third Army, came to the top the hard way. Born in eastern Germany, he came to America when he was eight and, like his brother, commanding the three other U. S. armies, volunteered for the Spanish-American War.

When he was mustered out, he enlisted as a private in the regular army infantry. He showed such aptitude that he skipped up the military ladder two rungs at a time, became a second lieutenant in two years.

From there he shuttled back and forth between active duty and army schools—at Leavenworth, the Infantry Cavalry School, the Staff College, the General Staff College at Langres, France, the Infantry School at Fort Benning, the Army War College, the Naval War College at Newport, R. I., and the Air Corps School at Brooks Field. As one of his subordinates put it, he is "just about the best educated man in the army."

At 60, Gen. Krueger is still a powerfully built man. He is of medium height with short cropped hair which is just beginning to grey. He reads military history and tactics with the same keen delight most people get out of a good murder yarn. Never happier than when he is in the field with his men, he puts Prussian emphasis on training.

The Second Division, which he took over in 1939, is one of the crack divisions of the army, and he takes great pride in the showing it makes on maneuvers.

When he feels the need for non-military recreation, Gen. Krueger shoulders his golf bag and marches down the course at a smart parade pace, leaving his opponents (who usually play a better game than he) so winded they can't play their best game.

If he loses, and he frequently does, it doesn't upset him. His friends say, "His heart isn't really in his game. He is probably working out some new offensive strategy for the tank corps when he should be concentrating on his putt. The military game is his game."

Imagination Fired by Infinite Detail

Lt. Gen. John L. DeWitt, Commander of the Fourth Army, was an army "brat," which means his father was an army officer. But he went into the army from Princeton, not from West Point. He had not finished college when the Spanish-American War broke out and he left school to go to it, as a second lieutenant of the Infantry. The thing that fired young DeWitt's imagination was the infinite detail of running an army. The army has a place for men with that slant. DeWitt went to France when the U. S. entered the war as Quartermaster of the 42nd (Rainbow) Division, and left France as assistant chief of staff for supply of the 1st Army. He had found his niche, and with infrequent tours of duty in the line, he has fought the good fight with pad and pencil ever since.

He is a slender, spare man, serious minded, and fast getting bald. He so enjoys detail that he doesn't delegate work. Consequently, he works long hours, driven by nervous energy, and seems never to tire of his job. When, as Quartermaster General of the Army, he hurried into the outer office in the morning, all the stenographers clutched their notebooks and tried to find their pencils before the General reached his desk. He began dictating before he took his hat off.

After the World War, DeWitt taught at the Army War College, and later became Assistant Commandant there. After his service as Quartermaster General he went into the field to command the Philippine Division, and when he came home again was made Commandant of the Army War College. From that job, he was promoted to command the Fourth Army, with three more years to serve before he reaches the retirement age.

Hike Asked for Railway Clerks Machinists, Telegraphers Join in Pay Hike Request

CHICAGO—(AP)—The nation's railroads are confronted Wednesday with demands for pay increases of 15,000 organized workers.

Fourteen railway labor organizations composed of clerks, machinists, telegraphers and other non-operating employees, decided Wednesday to seek raises of 30 to 34 cents an hour for their 800,000 members.

Five unions embracing the operating personnel, engineers, firemen, conductors, switchmen and trainmen, had May 19 to request a 30 per cent wage hike for the 350,000 men they represented.

The demands of both groups will be presented to the carriers on June 10.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

15 Miles of Kidney Tubes
Flush Out Poisonous Waste

15 miles of kidney tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste. These tiny filters and tubes are working with smarting and burning some filters show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Take a look at the same as bowel.

Get your doctor for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of your kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Chiefs of the non-operating organizations said they had decided to open their existing wage agreements with railways throughout the United States for the purpose of making such changes in wages as may be necessary to provide for a minimum wage of 70 cents per hour as the lowest rate to be paid in the industry and with other corresponding increases which will provide wage rates up to $1.15 per hour for the highly skilled workers in railroad service."

A spokesman reported the current minimum for semi-skilled workers was 36 cents an hour, while highly skilled mechanics now receive 85 cents an hour.

The railroads will be asked to make the new rates effective as of July 10, 1941.

Syria Ruled

first French mandate or colony to be blockaded by the British.

The action came soon after Australia had issued an order classing Syria and Lebanon as "enemy-occupied territory" for trading purposes.

Egypt, non-belligerent ally of Britain, Wednesday listed Syria as "enemy occupied territory."

Thursday's announcement stated as from May 27, Syria and Lebanon were regarded as enemy destinations for contraband, and all goods are liable to seizure.

Britain announced that all of France was subject to blockade last July but her colonies were allowed to trade freely except with Germany, Italy and occupied territory.

Thus Britain brought into use her economic arm against France even as British subjects expected to hear that the military arm had been brought into play in Syria and Lebanon.

Alexandria Hit by Nazi Bombs

100 Killed in What May Be Opening Eastern War

LONDON—(AP)—A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch from Cairo Thursday said it was announced officially that more than 100 persons were killed in an Axis raid on Alexandria Wednesday night.

Alexandria is the main base of the British Mediterranean fleet and stands 130 miles west of the Suez Canal, gateway of the Mediterranean.

While Alexandria has often been raided Wednesday night's casualty reported indicated the attack was the heaviest assault to date.

/ By the conquest of Crete, Germany has gained an air springboard by which to bomb the British stronghold.

Only Thursday, Die Wehrmacht, a magazine published by the German high command, said the air journey to Alexandria had been reduced to a little over 500 miles.)

The assault, on which there was little information, well may have been a preliminary for the main event of the struggle for dominance of the Mediterranean and the Middle East which already threatens the French empire.

In Berlin, DNB (official German news agency) reported that oil tanks at Alexandria had been set ablaze in Wednesday night's raid and said the glare of the flames could be seen far.
